BILL NYE AS A JUSTICE.

An Account of a Remarkable Marriage Ceremony in a Wild Country.

I forgot to say that the office of justice of the peace was not a satisfied one, but dependent upon fees, the county furnishing only the copy of the revised statutes and a wretched, slightly and prematurely bald. So while I was called Judge Nye, and frequently mentioned in the papers with great consideration, I was out of coal about half the time, and once could not mail my letters for three weeks because I did not have the necessary postage. Friends in the eastern states may possibly recall the time when my correspondence from some unknown source seemed to flag. That was the time. Of course I could have borrowed the money, but I had, and still have, a foolish horror of borrowing money. I did not mind running an account, but I hated to borrow.

The first business that I had was a marriage ceremony. I met the groom on the street. He asked me if I could marry people. I said that I could to a limited extent. He said that he wanted to get married. I asked him to name the victim, and I would get the other ingredients. He then wished to know where my office was. It occurred to me at that moment that there was no fire in the stove; also, no coal; also, that the west half of the stove had fallen in during the night. So I said that I would marry them at their home. He maintained that his home was over eighty miles away, and that it would consume too much time to go there.

Where are you stopping at? I inquired—using the like county style of syntax in order to show that I was one of the people.

'Well, we met here, squire. She came in on the Last Chance stage, and I camped up on the West end canyon, not far from Soldier creek. We went on over there, I reckon.'

I did not mind the ride, so I locked my office, secured a look of fortune and met the young people at the livery stable went out with them and married them in a rambling, half-savagely way.

The bride was a pert from Owl creek, wearing moccasins of the plowcase age, a rich Castilian blood of the old dwellers amonged in her cheek along with the mangled blood of Connecticut on her father's side. Her hair was the wing of a raven, and she wore a tangle of chain shells about her beaming brow. Her husband was a country boy of front teeth, selected from the early settlers at the foot of Independence mountain.

With the shrewdness of a Yankee and the hauteur of a Virginia she combined the grotesque grammar of Pike county and the charming naïveté of the old Kentucky.

But I think it was mostly in a spirit of humor. She was also no longer young. I asked her, with an air of badinage, if she remembered Pizarro, but she replied that she was away from home when he came through. These cave dwellers were a serious people. Their plucking was very poor indeed; so also were their jokes. Her features were rather classic, however, and I was about to say clean cut, but on more mature thought I will say that her nose was bright and piercing. It resembled the breastbone of a sandhill crane.

Marriage Terribly Irrevocable.

A little while ago I "interviewed" the father of one daughter, and she passing him, on this road and wretched point. He is a man who understands himself and knows how to say what he means, so when his open brow darkened at a hint that his girl might not always be his alone, I pushed inquiry. It did not satisfy me to be told that he had a loaded revolver and ball dog ready for any fellow who should dare ask for his daughter. I was not satisfied. I could never have the best thing a man could do, and the worst thing a woman ever did, was to marry. Sensible citizens, even when fathers and sons, do not rave sanely. Presently he steadied down into calm coherence.

"It is because we know men—how loose in grain many of them are; how selfishly inconsiderate are the best of them; how dull of sensibility and slow of apprehension are all of us when compared with women—that that shudder to resign our tenderly nurtured girls to them," he said, feelingly. "Men understand what I mean! And marriage is so terribly irrevocable."

"But you married!"

"Yes, and have been glad of it, on my own account, ever since. Had I known a woman's needs and nature then as I do now, her delicate sensibilities, her capacity for love and for suffering, I could never have had the presumption to offer her marriage with myself."

The more refined the man's nature, the more strongly does he feel that this true husband and nobility of God's own making expressed. Yet, despite his testimony, the truth abides that the best earthly happiness for woman is found in a judicious marriage.

When her choice is wisely made, there are no peculiar miseries in wedlock; no thorns on which she would not weary to stay to remain celibate. It is only through her failure to enter into the church service puts it "discreetly" upon this ordinance of divine appointment that inevitable sorrow is incident upon it.—Marion Harland.

An Elegant Luncheon.

Last Saturday the charming luncheon was given by Mrs. J. H. Kenney in honor of Miss Frank, of Breckenridge county, Kentucky, who has been visiting her for several weeks. She was assisted by Mrs. M. Johnson, her sister, and Miss Frank. Covers were laid for 12, and the luncheon served in courses on rare old china and crystal. The table decoration was a mass of white and pink chrysanthemums arranged around mirrors extending the length of the table. The silver candelabra were entwined with smilax, and at each place a souvenir card of the exquisite drawing of the open door doorway laid out for the dining room was banked on either side with rare plants, and the pictures and small tables decorated with vines and roses. The softest of light was shed over the scene from numbers of shaded wax candles and fairy lamps.

However beautiful though the surroundings, the array of bright young ladies was more than its equal, and their brilliant conversation kept pace with the flowing hours. The event will be long remembered by the participants.—Faded News.

THE ROMA

Is the Arayan religion of the chief offering to the gods. The Roma is the fabled juice of the Roma or Moon plant, which, being a strong drink, gave new excitement to those who partook of it, and was believed to impart power to the gods. It was believed, moreover, that it wrought miracles, and for this reason, perhaps, it afterwards became the chief god of the Hindus. In a vedic hymn the worshipers say:

"We've quaffed the Roma bright,
And we are immortal grown;
We've entered into light,
And what mortal now can harm,
Or frown us as we roam,
Through their beyond all death,
Immortal Gods we say."

No such power as this is attributed to any plant at the present time, and yet many of the cures performed by S. S. S., a purely vegetable remedy, seem almost to border on the miraculous. In contagious blood poison, scrofula, skin diseases, some forms of cancer, etc., it is the remedy par excellence.

Payday Comes After Eighteen Years.

Charles King, of Little Falls, has done a very commendable thing, by paying $4,600 to the operators that worked in the Saxony mill at the time of the falling of A. & C. King, which occurred in 1872, during a depression of the kind goods trade. Mr. King was not obliged to do this, but he has always said that the first time he controlled the amount of capital that would pay off the wages due to the men, he would make failure he would most all die.

One hundred and three persons, who were working in the mill, have been made happy by receiving checks for their back wages. A few of the old employees have died. The heirs of deceased operators will be paid the amount due.—Utica (N. Y.) Herald.

FARMERS SUPPLY HOUSE

HARDINSBURG, KENTUCKY.

THE REMAND SHOULD BE MADE.

Judge Finletter, in charging the jury in a case tried in common pleas court, gave an opinion emphatically sustaining the rights of husbands to rule their homes.

The suit was that of John Yates against Christiana R. M. Greaves, brought to recover damages for false arrest and malicious prosecution. Mrs. Greaves resided in Yates' house. She was ordered by him to leave, but Mrs. Yates, to whom Miss Greaves paid her board, told her to stay. Yates subsequently upon coming home, quarreled with his wife and, it is alleged, choked her, and when Miss Greaves interfered, it is alleged, he threatened to kill her.

The next morning Mrs. Yates went with Miss Greaves to a magistrate's office, where the latter swore out a warrant charging Yates with threatening her life. He was locked up, and spent the night in a station house.

Miss Greaves did not appear against Yates the next day and he was discharged, but in her behalf it was alleged that her nonappearance was due to a solicitation by Yates' brother-in-law, who said that he couldn't get bail. After his release Yates brought the present suit against Miss Greaves.

Judge Finletter said that Miss Greaves should have obeyed the direction of Yates to leave. She had no right to remain in the house against his wish. The jury therefore have to find a verdict for the plaintiff. In arriving at the damages they should consider the condition in life of the parties, the finding for the plaintiff they should not "fix their verdict for him for a few dollars or five cents, making it ridiculous by the small amount, but they should give him such a sum as would show that in Philadelphia every husband has the right and must rule his own household."

The jury after a short deliberation returned a verdict of $500 for the plaintiff.—Philadelphia News.

The First Symptoms of Death.

Tired feeling, dull headache, pains in various parts of the body, sinking at the pit of the stomach, loss of appetite, feverishness, plimpsy or sore, are all positive evidence of poisoned blood. No matter how it became poisoned it must be purified to avoid death. Dr. Acker's English Blood Purifier has never failed to remove scrofula or syphilis poison. Sold under a positive guarantee by G. W. Short, Cloverport, Ky., and Witt & Meador, Hardinsburg, Ky.

Full Knockover for Men.

The shadow of knockover of September was milberry, and beautiful indeed were the combinations in which its treatment was varied. There are many men that will not wear a red sock under any consideration. They entertain a positive prejudice to the blue, and nothing can change them. To them the milberry of ferings are a benison.

Red, red, red! Red here, red there, red everywhere. Red is the rage in fine neckwear.

The reddest, reddest reds are worn by some of the dresny men, by a subjugation of every other detail of attire, seek to quell the dresny of this singular piece of texture.—Clothing and Furnisher.

Cultivating Nuts.

Effort is now being made to introduce in the United States a very remarkable nut, Japan called the "ginkgo." The tree that bears it is supposed to be the oldest in the world, inasmuch as it grows as far back as the coal forming epoch. Beautiful specimens of it extend in two rows on either side of the main avenue leading to the department of agriculture. Some of them are bearing fruit this year.

In Florida experiments are being tried for the improvement of the small variety of chestnut called the "chinquapin." It is also being attempted to graft upon the chinquapin big chestnuts and in this way the latter may be produced on a dwarf growth.—Washington Star.

"How delicious is the winning
Of a kiss at love's beginning."

And his sentiment is true with one possible exception. If either party has the catarrh, even love's kiss loses its sweetness.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is a sure cure for this repulsive and distressing affliction. By its mild, soothing, antiseptic, cleansing and healing properties, it cures the worst cases. $500 reward offered for an incurable case.

Some Distinguished Stars.

In a down town cafe the other day I met two gentlemen whose names will read remarkable men and remarkable events in American history. They were Lieutenant Fremont and Lieutenant Lawrence, of the United States navy. The former is the son of the late distinguished John C. Fremont, "the Pathfinder," who ran for president of the United States, and the other was Lawrence, the grandson of the hero of Lake Erie, old "Don't give up the ship."

That these two gentlemen should come into the New York lunch room for something to eat and drink was nothing remarkable, but that they should come in arm and arm, was something sufficient to stir the imagination. Lieutenant Fremont is a student of the new cruiser Philadelphia. He is a fine specimen of manhood, as was his father before him.—New York Herald.

How to Select a Turkey.

In this country only is a turkey found in a wild state. It is very fitting, therefore, that in the Christmas dinner it should be the principal dish. The turkey must be wisely chosen, well cooked and properly served. It should be short and plump, the meat white, with some fat, the legs black and smooth, and if there be spurs they should be short. The end of the breastbone should be flattened, more like a gristle than bone.

A turkey that is long in proportion to its size, and has dark or bluish flesh, is tender, but certainly will not be finely flavored and juicy. A dry plucked turkey will be found to have a much better flavor than a scold one. All poultry that is dry plucked costs a few cents a pound more than the scalded, but is well worth the extra price.—Marion in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Terrible Cough.

In the morning, hurried or difficult breathing, raising phlegm, tightness in the chest, quickened pulse, chilliness in the evening or averts at night, all or any of these things are the first stage of consumption. Dr. Acker's English Cough Remedy will cure these fearful symptoms and is sold under a positive guarantee by G. W. Short, Cloverport, Ky., and Witt & Meador, Hardinsburg, Ky.

Steel Dividing Beds.

A man in San Francisco has some queer dividing beds. They are four slender pieces of steel, tapering to a point at one end and flattened out at the other, with notches in the extremities like the notches in an arrow. Two are as long as the bed and the other two are from side to side, and up and down, pointing it is said, to that part of the room that is the most comfortable.

In a few minutes the rods more or less horizontally with the hands close together. The notches are pressed together. In a few minutes the rods more or less horizontally with the hands close together. The notches are pressed together. In a few minutes the rods more or less horizontally with the hands close together. The notches are pressed together.

Some persons cannot use the rods, but those who can may easily find the dividing place of any valuable.—New York Sun.

What Thinking Over.

Young Mr. Garter—Is your sister in Harry's Harry Clapp—Yes. But she isn't going to receive any gentleman after this unless he wears a red sock under any consideration. Mr. Garter—Why? What brought her to that decision?

Harry—Gams she must have found out that you didn't have one.—Clothing and Furnisher.

It is an established fact that DeWitt's Little Ear Aches have an enormous sale, and why? Simply because they are pleasant in taking and happy in results. A pill for the multitude.—Sold by Short & Haynes.

Miss Jennie will be glad to see her old friends and customers whom she has served so regular for these twenty-two, we won't say if, for Miss Jennie is only in her teens. Come in and see her.

Notice the firms that are doing the business in this town and then take a glance at our advertising columns. Don't you see?

F. S. D'Arcy has prepared, painted and gilded two sets of rooms in handsome ballroom attire for his new stock of X-mas goods.

For the next thirty days I will sell military at cost. Mrs. Haynes. Miss Lizzie Rickets is now prepared to do dressmaking up stairs in the Old Breckenridge Bank opposite Sulzer's store. Dresses made cheaper than ever before.

Willis Green, of Falls of Rough, is at the Louisville Hotel. Mr. Green is a son of Senator LaF Green, who owns a magnificent home at Falls of Rough. Courier-Journal.

A. W. Powers, of Stephensport, was here Saturday and renewed his subscription to the News. Mr. Powers draws a big pension which comes in very nicely for him in his old age.

A. J. Kinst, the merchant tailor of Cannelton, will be here to-morrow, Thursday, soliciting orders for clothing. If you need anything in his line give him an order. He will treat you right.

Roland Smith and wife, Hardinsburg, came down Saturday to meet Mr. J. J. Hall, Mrs. Smith's brother, who is here from Missouri on a short visit. Mr. Hall is a former citizen of this place, having lived here some twenty odd years ago.

Messrs. Kleinhaus & Simonson, Louisville, will send the Sunday Courier-Journal free until Christmas to all persons answering their advertisement in this paper. Read what they say, write them and mention the Breckenridge News.

Mr. McPherson, of this city, passed her nineteenth birthday last week and is as stout and spry as one of fifty. She has a remarkable memory and loves to talk of the good old times gone by. She is in splendid health and bids fair to live out her term.

Miss Minnie Bradsher, of Stephensport, and Mr. Fred Bradsher, a well-known young business man of Parkland, were married last Wednesday. They received their friends Thursday at the residence of Mr. Sam Bradsher. Courier-Journal.

It is a good thing to carry an accident policy. Accidents will happen to the best of men. Mr. C. W. Moorman met with an accident at the brick plant that laid him up for two weeks. He carries a $10,000 accident policy which entitles him to $50 a week.

Clint Hook tried it on the News one week and was satisfied. Clint learned the business in an office where they worked about three days in a week and went fishing the rest of the time. In this office he had to hustle every day in the year. Clint is a good type settler, but he likes to be near his girl when he sets them.

Squire Thos. Dyer returned home last Friday, his daughter, Mrs. John Butler and her son Horace and Mr. Bob Glasgow accompanying him. They returned home Saturday. "Uncle" Tommy is as spry as ever and was out on the streets Monday shaking hands with his friends.

Mr. J. D. Gregory, of Louisville, has called a conference to meet at Cloverport Dec. 15, of delegates from all towns of the fifth class, to consider charter changes under the new constitution. Standard and Lancaster come under this classification and ought to send representatives. Standard Interior Journal.

Prof. F. M. C. Jolly, of the primary room in the public school, has been at home in Hardinsburg on the sick list for some time. Miss Lizzie Stiles is filling his place.

Mr. Chas. Watlington has sold out her military goods to Miss Georgia Hawkins, and she will open up in the same place, one door above Roberts, Blain & Co.

A few friends were entertained quite pleasantly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Watlington Friday evening. Those present were Messrs. Kirby and Arthur Blain, Miss Florence Williams, of Evansville, Ind., Dr. D. White, Charles Davis; Misses Lada Davis and Violet R. Miller.

A Family Reunion.

Mr. D. L. Talbot has a saddle of venison sent him from Memphis, this along with turkey and other good things will be served at Mr. Jesse L. Talbot's table. There will be a family reunion on the 10th, one sister, two uncles and one aunt. They have not all met at one time around one common hearth since 1857. Hardin County Independent.

LONG BRANCH.

God is blessing us with good healthy weather.

Miss Iney Dooley entertained a few friends Sunday.

And P. Hendrick is visiting her son, Calvin Hendricks.

Most of the farmers will finish husking corn this week, and the next work in order will be hog killing.

Miss Mary and Jimmie Rickstaff entertained a few friends Friday night and an elegant supper was served.

Miss Nellie McGeehee entertained a few friends at her home Thanksgiving. She returned to her school at Pewee Monday.

Mr. Steward Young, of Louisville, makes daily trips to this place looking after his work that is going on. All wish him success.

Miss Bettie Dittus was in the neighborhood last week delivering the book she sold some time ago. She seems to be making a success of her agency and all wish her a prosperous future.

Mr. David Murray was expected here last week to settle the stock claim against the railroad, but no one saw him except to pass on the train. If he is not more punctual in the future the people will lose faith in his promises.

SAMPLE.

Success to the News. Winter has come at last. Church here next Sunday.

Heavy Winter. Wm. J. Winter. John M. Gortzgrager.

THE REASON WHY.
Did you ever stop to think how it is possible for some clothing dealers, who advertise daily reductions in prices and who are apparently selling goods for nothing, to wear fine clothes, live off the fat of the land and drive fast horses? We will tell you. It is because they pull the wool over your eyes. They make you believe they are cutting prices, when the fact is you don't get a cent off—unless it is some old shop-worn, moth-eaten garment, which it pays to get rid of at any price.

We are selling honest clothing at honest prices, and which is actually cheaper than you can buy trashy clothing for any of these so-called cut-rate houses.

It is quite probable that the present operator out at the depot will go to the Falls of Rough in a few days and Mr. Jesse Whitworth will be given his old place.

It is a little singular that all the cattle and hogs bought near this town have to be driven to Kirk to be shipped. Why don't the railroad company put stock pens at the depot here.

Charles B. K. Skillman has completed the transcript for the Court of Appeals in the case John R. Hicks against the Breckenridge Company (limited). Hicks received a judgment against the Company in the Circuit Court last April for $4,000 from which they appealed.

In a conversation with Mr. Andrew Crawford at Stephensport the other day he told me there was some talk of starting a bank at that place. Mr. Crawford is one of the leading business men of the town, and he thinks a bank there would be a small capital would do a nice paying business.

A Good Reader.
Mr. J. J. Blocher has purchased of Mr. Jas. Stephens, of Holt, a fine reader named Brown's McQuaid. It is a very old and goes over a country road in latter time than three minutes—Owensboro Inquirer.
